I saw it, sending it along, and having a talk with the team (Shift)

I just sent back a revised press release. I hope the future releases don't suck that badly, but whatever. I wanted to mention an issue that will hit us less than 24 hours from now: the Sabbath. I am out of commission, as you know, every Friday sunset until Saturday night dark. This week (in DC) that's 6 PM Friday until 7 PM Saturday night. Since I can't look at my computer, what do we do about any drafts that they send? can one of you nab them and either redo them or get them to Neil?

Ok, thanks for the heads up. I'm forging some agreements to buy a large bulk (in the millions)

Japheth,

I saw the Telegram exchange on the press releases being held up by Neil. Obviously we can't have that. I have loaded up a huge workload for Neil, most of which is urgent, so I think we should take him out of this press loop.

I also want you focused on getting this ICO moving as fast as possible, and with the amount of stuff you are having to handle, I think we need a different approach other than you doing the press release reviews.

I have asked Jack to help us with this. I want them to send all press release drafts to press@amlbitcoin.com, which I will forward to Jack's email.

He will review and then send back any comments or approvals to your email.

Please be on the lookout for them, strip out any mention of Jack and just forward back to the PR team.
